Not needed if ANTH 100 taken

The following major courses also apply to the College Core:

- Critical thinking
- Communication skills
- The ability to conduct research and to communicate the results of their research.
- An interest in a broad range of human behavior

Planning Notes

- Anthropology is divided into four sub-disciplines:
  - Biological Anthropology
  - Archaeology
  - Ethnology
  - Linguistics

- Some courses are offered in alternate years. Students should plan ahead using the two-year schedule. ANTH 303 and 305 may also be taken by majors as tutorials or be satisfied by an appropriate internship (limit-one).

- While only the 300-level courses have prerequisites, students should wait until the sophomore year before enrolling in any of the 200-level courses.

- While any other Anthropology course can satisfy the elective requirement in anthropology, students should seriously consider taking either ANTH 475–477 (The Washington Experience), 490 (Internship courses), 493 (Fieldwork), or 496 (Independent Study) to complete this requirement.

- Study abroad and foreign language study are strongly encouraged.

- Students majoring in Anthropology are eligible for a fast-track option to the MS in International Studies at St. John Fisher College. Please refer to the College Bulletin for additional information.

- All BA candidates must demonstrate completion of an appropriate two-course sequence in a single foreign language for graduation.

Related Programs & Suggested Minors

Students pursuing a B.A. in Anthropology are required to complete a minor in another area of study. Most minors require a minimum of 18 credits. Given the range of anthropology, there are many minor (or double major) programs that would be useful such as history, psychology, computer science, chemistry, biology, peace and social justice, and women and gender studies.

Experiential Opportunities (Internships, Clinicals, Clubs & Organizations, etc.)

- The Washington Experience – a semester in Washington, D.C. Students interested in this program should consult with their departmental advisor and The Washington Center-Fisher Liaison: Dr. Monica Cherry, mcherry@sjfc.edu

- The department can direct students to many internship opportunities in the Rochester area such as the Rochester Museum & Science Center, the George Eastman House, and the Baker-Cederberg Museum and Archives.

- The Anthropology Club offers many activities to include speakers, films, and trips. The club is designed to help students engage in active learning about anthropology.

- Majors may also get involved in the Student Government Association (SGA), and the Student Activities Board (SAB), as well as any of the campus clubs and organizations on campus. Check the Student Government website http://home.sjfc.edu/sga for further information.

Career Opportunities & Related Fields

- Many job opportunities available for students in areas such as working on contract sites, anthropological testing, medical testing, and teaching ESL abroad. Department advisors work with students in the second year to start the job and career search process.
